If you're a fan of Glennon Doyle and Elizabeth Gilbert, or you're looking for a profoundly moving and enjoyable summer read, you need to experience this book.

This transformative memoir, written after the sudden and devastating loss of her father, is a powerful reflection on love, human emotion, and resilience. Dipped In It illustrates how we can't "grateful" ourselves out of hard feelings. It is an entreaty to feel everything — especially the difficult feelings — and tell our stories, because being vulnerable with each other allows us to truly connect and appreciate love's many forms. Simply put, grief and gratitude are not mutually exclusive. We get to carry both within us.

WHAT PEOPLE ARE SAYING!

Bethany has an uncanny way of speaking directly to the heart about what it means to be on this messy human journey. Thoughtful, impactful, and deeply transformative, her stories, insights, heartbreaks, and humor make us more open to being 'tenderized' by our experiences [...]. This book is a revelation.

~ Monica Rodgers, founder of The Revelation Project

Bethany Harvey's Dipped In It is poetic and wise. Her stories grab you with their simple truth and shine light on the cold fact that love — and all the glory that comes with it — is inextricably bound to loss and grief. She manages to do this in a way that knocks the breath out of your chest, yet somehow you're not sorry, or even sad. Instead, you're elated by the privilege of getting to experience this raw, tender paradox of being human.

~ Sarah MacLaughlin, author of the award-winning, bestselling book, What Not to Say, Tools for Talking with Young Children and the forthcoming, Raising Humans with Heart: Not a How-To Manual

Bethany tackles the messiness of life and loss with grace, honesty, and humor. From the first word, her raw, open writing style pulled me in. I laughed with her, cried with her, and cheered her on every step of the way.

~ Tabitha Lord, award-winning author of the HORIZON series
